

One-Page One-Shot: CREATURE KING

Written by Wes Gift

6 Panels

PANEL 1: CREATURE KING, a twenty-foot tall purple-skinned monster, sits in a giant chair on the backlot of a movie studio. In his hands is a movie script, and the title 'TUNA TYPHOON' is clearly visible on the front. He is visibly annoyed by what he is reading and mutters to himself.

1 CREATURE: This is garbage...

2 DEBRA (OFF): Creature? Creature King?

PANEL 2: Looking down over Creature King's shoulder, we see DEBRA, a production assistant, holding a clipboard. Her brown curly hair almost hides the headset she is wearing.

3 DEBRA: You're on in five.

4 DEBRA: Say, is 'Creature King' your real name?

PANEL 3: Reverse POV, now looking up at Creature King over Debra's shoulder. She receives a call over her headset.

5 CREATURE: No, that was a silly title the newspapers gave me, my real name is—

SFX: PING!

6 DEBRA: Oh! Hold that thought.

PANEL 4: We see Debra from the front, walking away from Creature King. He calls out to her.

7 DEBRA: I'll see you on set! Get ready to be scared!

8 CREATURE: Wait!

PANEL 5: Close-up on Creature King's face, he is a bit confused.

9 CREATURE: How are tuna more terrifying than sharks?

PANEL 6: Same POV as panel 5, Creature King's face is now unhappy, as he rubs his forehead, distraught.

10 CREATURE: I should have listened to Aquaman—

11 CREATURE: And left that potion where I found it.